Yeah I see it. But I won't get Connor online before Dec 26th if it's not an emergency. And also, it's super hard to sell an amount that really makes a difference .. if you look at markets you'll see that selling 100,000 CEL a day is already a decent task without crashing the current rally. And now look at Alex, he decided that he does not like CEL to rise too fast and is now selling as much as he can to stop that .. he sold already close to 100,000 CEL bringing the price down from $3.90 to $3.60 ... if we would now add selling pressure as well we would bring prices down even more and stop the positive price move .. and that's no good. Easiest way for us to sell a shot ton of CEL without stopping the rally is to sell OTC .. We can sell any size without adding pressure on markets

Agreed! That's now what I was suggesting - to put anyone particularly at work at this time!!!

If you like, at next all hands, I can remind everyone that they can sell the vested and available cels

If you ask me. Maybe he was even setting a stage for him to just sell to take some profit. You know what I mean?

It's not like he will run out of cels if he takes a little profit on some portion and he didn't even pay for those

Hi =) I offered anyone with spare time today 100 CEL in our OTC chat and as you saw Jacob took the offer and sent out all agreements

Johannes Treutler

This was a great help as CEL is trading a bit volatile $3.40-3.80 and Its great to have everyone signing agreements what Alex says half the time is not true as far as finance goes. So I would keep wide eyes open
